ALUMNI SPEAK

Anjali Seerwani, Research Analyst,
Tech Mahindra, Pune

I, Anjali Seerwani, would like to take this opportunity and share a few words of gratitude to Dr. B. H. Nanwani and my teachers, who have provided me a sense of direction and helped me, shape my future. The journey at SVIMS was always full of learning and challenges. As the saying goes growth and comfort cannot co-exist, hence to grow it is important to step out of one's comfort zone. This learning was provided to me at SVIMS and I was given an opportunity to be a part of its International Conferences, Seminars, and Festivals etc. These enabled me to interact with the big names from the corporate world. Apart from this, sanctuary helped me to connect with myself. It gave me a platform to enhance my public speaking skills and air my views.. Being a part of social service programs made me understand the importance of acceptance in life. I will always be thankful to be part of this wonderful institution.

START UP INDIA

The new buzz word which is doing the rounds in the Indian business environment is STARTUPS. Everywhere you go, you can't miss hearing or reading about new business being started by the young and the restless as well as the old and experienced people.

We Indians traditionally are known to be safe players, that is, generally we are happy to secure government jobs with security and pension. But what has changed in the current times that India is suddenly being considered as a start up hub?

The answers are not difficult to seek. There is this rising middle class, which is forever, looking out for new things and ideas. Start-ups are businesses that are catering to these unmet needs and then there is Internet connectivity and a very young population which is bold and brave!

The incentives offered by the Modi government have further incentivised the setting up of start-ups. Some new incentives include exemptions from income tax for first three years, no inspection for first three years, 80% rebate on patent filing fee, 90 days to exit business, Mobile app for start up registration in one day, to name a few.
