

Dada Says...

You are in search of happiness: then make others happy.

He who blesses others is blessed, and he who injures others is injured.

Such is the great law!

SVIMS NEWROOM

Corporate Interface – Guest Talk
28th September 2019

Topic: Millennial's, Gen Z and the changes they bring to the workplace

Resource Person: Ms Karishma Kashikar

Senior executive for Employee Branding at Springer Nature and our alumna, Ms Karishma Kashikar took a different and a very relevant approach to explaining the concept of 'Work Ethic' and how to build it. She addressed this concept in context of Millennials and Gen Z by stating the facts and figures relating to this mix of the population and breaking certain misconceptions that Gen X has about Millennials/Millennials have about the Gen Z. Towards the end of this session, she also stated couple of priceless corporate lessons she gathered in her past work experience.

LoL

1. Both of you stand together separately
2. Will you hang the calendar or else I will hang myself
3. Give me a blue pen of any colour
4. Pick up the paper and fall in the dustbin
5. Why are you looking at the monkeys outside when I am inside?
6. All of you stand in straight circle
7. I have two daughters both are girls

GROWING UP

Image Source: <https://joequatronejr.com/2014/02/13/growing-up/>

Growing up isn't when you hit puberty, it is when you understand what loneliness and being alone really means! Puberty is merely a sign for the world to know that you have completed your very first stage of life! Growing up is that instance when you really feel the pain of your loved ones whose relationship has come to an end, it doesn't have any particular age to feel what your loved ones are going through, to feel it just requires skill to hear them out rather than judging them.

Growing up is when the first time you hear your inner voice for being independent. Independent for not just being into a job, independent for handling your emotions yourself!

Growing up is when you understand that you are just a dwarf on this earth and you are here to make a difference, not only by your actions but also by your thoughts of living a better life than a day before! Growing up is when you realize your problems are so small when compared to another's colossal problems and appreciating that they still haven't given up!

Growing up is acknowledging your setbacks, sorrows, flaws, weakness, failures and still not giving a damn by allowing a smirk on your face! It is learning without fear of failure and nurturing an everlasting thirst of exploring wonders of life!
